

Chest Sets Quota At $86,944

MONROE County Community Chest and Council officially launched its 1960-61 campaign for funds yesterday with the appointment of two co-chairmen and a number of division chairmen.

H. Glenn Sanborn Jr., Chest president, announced the naming of Fred J. Lee and John W. Sibley as co-chairmen of the drive.

He also disclosed that this year's campaign goal is $86,944, which represents a slight reduction from last year's goal of $87,510. The current quota is the amount raised in the 1959-60 campaign.

Sanborn said the proposed allocations to the 12 member agencies of the Chest were tailored to meet the reduced quota.

Three children were named to head the Resorts Division: John M. Crandall and John O'Neill for the Top of the Poconos and Harold J. Hamlen for the Eastern Poconos.

Alfred Schaefer and William Reaser are co-chairmen of the Industrial Division, and Nelson Westbrook chairman of the Professional Division. Other chairmen:

Trade Division — Stroudsburg, H. Glenn Sanborn III, and East Stroudsburg, Martin Ellsweig and David Bernbaum.

Public Service—Stroudsburg, Chester Miller, and East Stroudsburg, Frank Lanterman and Theodore Henning.

Organizations—Walter McClelland, clubs, and Stuart Pipher, unions.

Barrett Township—Stephen Moffett and Mrs. Ray Price.

Names of the house-to-house chairmen for Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg and the county will be announced later.

Khrush Jolted By U.N. After Violent Speech

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev delivered a violent farewell to the U. N. General Assembly Thursday and it jolted him once again by overwhelmingly rejecting his demand for direct debate on his spy plane charges against the United States. He was voted down 54-10.

Khrushchev accused President Eisenhower of lying and of being "on a leash" of the U. S. military. He told the United States, "If you want war, you'll get war."

He denounced the Security Council as "worse than a spittoon—a cuspidor."

He called U. N. Secretary-

Lawrence, Taylor Rap Each Other

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. Lawrence and Senate leader M. Harvey Taylor bitterly criticized each other Thursday in an unusual exchange of statements over responsibility for legislative recesses.

Lawrence has criticized the Republican leader in the past, but usually in response to newsmen's questions.

At his weekly news conference yesterday he read a sharply worded statement attributing responsibility for continuance of the limited 1960 session of the General Assembly with the 84-year-old Dauphin County lawmaker.

"By dictating another recess, rather than adjournment, on the Republican caucus in the Senate, Taylor has ridiculed the leadership of his own party in the Senate and made a mockery out of the legislative process," Lawrence said.

The governor claimed that sentiment among the bulk of the membership of the House and Senate favored final adjournment, which Democrats have been seeking all year.

The current session of the Legislature, limited by a 1959 constitutional amendment to consideration of tax and appropriations bills, has done nothing since Feb. 5, said Lawrence. It has met for a total of 15 days this year.

Within an hour, Taylor, who has long been considered the dominant personality in the Republican-controlled Senate, issued a reply, also sharply worded.

He said that the governor is not interested in the candidacy of Sen. John F. Kennedy, Democratic presidential nominee, adding: "He prefers control of the Legislature."

Taylor, Senate president pro tempore, went on to say that Lawrence and his Democratic predecessor, former Gov. Leader, added 15,000 employees to the state payroll at a cost estimated by Taylor at a million dollars a day.

Candidates Clash On Peace Issue

By The Associated Press
THE TWO men fighting it out for the presidency spurned the religious issue and the Ku Klux Klan but pounded each other hard Thursday night on the suddenly mushroomed issue of defending Quemoy and Matsu.

Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic nominee, and Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the Republican entry in the White House race, also slammed away at one another on what it would cost to do things for America.

Nixon, for example, said Kennedy's farm program would raise food costs 25 per cent. "Not true," Kennedy fired back.

They did agree that the United States is bound to stand by commitments to defend Berlin. The rivals clashed in their third of four scheduled radio-television debates — side by side on split-screen TV but 3,000 miles apart physically. Kennedy was in New York, Nixon and a four-man panel of questioning newsmen were in Los Angeles.

The third installment of the great debate began and wound up on the issue of whether Kennedy's policy or Nixon's policy would be more likely to take America down the road to war. Nothing was settled, no position was changed, nothing much developed except a rehash of arguments that first broke out last Friday and kept going in the intervening days.

No Change Of Position
Again there was no difference on the point of yielding Quemoy and Matsu islands—Chinese Nationalist dots just off the Red Chinese coast, under the threat of Communist guns.

But Kennedy again insisted that it is Formosa and the Pescadore islands, farther out, that must be defended under any circumstances — according to U. S. treaty obligations. He said Nixon was going further than the Eisenhower administration in urging defense of Quemoy and Matsu.

The vice president said Kennedy's position only encourages the Chinese Communists to press America to the point "where war is inevitable." Nothing, he said, could be a greater blow to the free nations of Asia than for the country to go along with Kennedy. For his part, Kennedy fired back that he didn't "think it possible for Mr. Nixon to state the record with more distortion of fact."

Furthermore, Kennedy said, Nixon never has protested what the senator termed Communist seizure of Cuba, just 90 miles from Florida.

For the first time in one of these appearances with a nation looking and listening in, the issue of Kennedy's Roman Catholic religion came up.

Roscoe Drummond, columnist

for the New York Herald Tribune, said Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, D-N.Y., a Negro, and Gov. Michael V. DiSalle of Ohio, a Catholic, have been saying bigots and members of the KKK are going to vote for Nixon. In Columbus, DiSalle said he had been misquoted. Drummond asked Kennedy the purpose of this sort of thing and how he feels about it.

The senator said he disapproves. He said he had heard that the head of the Klan in Florida had come out for Nixon but that "I do not suggest in any way" that Nixon is involved with the Klan or its support.

Nixon said he welcomed the opportunity before what he called the largest audience in history "to join Sen. Kennedy completely in rejecting the religious issue."

But that was one of the few times they were in harmony in a whole hour of jousting at each other.

Mostly they were dead serious. Nixon did smile a bit when he was introduced. Each managed a flicker of a grin on occasion.

In fact, there was a bit of levity for the first time in these debates when Kennedy was asked whether he felt an apology was due Nixon for former President Harry S. Truman's having told Texans they ought to go to hell if they vote the Republican ticket.

"I must say," Kennedy remarked dryly, "Mr. Truman has his method of expressing things."

He said he didn't think there was anything he could say to the 76-year-old former chief executive to cause him to change his style. "Perhaps Mrs. Truman can," he suggested. "I don't think I can."

Responsibility

There was a bit of a twinkle in Kennedy's eye. Not in Nixon's. A man who has been president, he said, has a responsibility not to lose his temper in public.

Plenty of other topics got a going over—the nation's gold supply, economic growth, oil depletion allowances, U. S. military strength, the budget, disarmament, labor legislation.

On that latter item, Nixon conceded Kennedy indicated last October he favored compulsory arbitration of major strikes. Kennedy said he never did any such thing.

The senator said sourly that "I always have difficulty recognizing my position when stated by the vice president."

The vice president came back later and said he would issue a white paper on this subject that would prove he is right.

Nixon Retorts

Nixon reacted sharply to a newsmen's question recalling that Kennedy had spoken this week of the nation not wanting a "trigger-happy" president. The reference was to Nixon's demand that the United States stand ready to protect Quemoy and Matsu.

Saying he resented the implication, the vice president declared there is no evidence that the Republicans have been trigger-happy. He noted that the country has gone to war under three Democratic presidents.

And Nixon repeated his charge that Kennedy, in speaking of the islands as strategically indefensible and not worth the risk of war, was in fact fanning the flames of war.

To give in to aggression of any extent, Nixon argued, would only encourage the communist dictatorships to demand more and more.

Nixon and Kennedy agreed on one thing here: They both think the United States would honor its obligations to Formosa.

"There isn't any question on that," Nixon said.

"We must meet our commitments to Formosa," was the way Kennedy put it.

Khrushchev Ends Visit, Flies Home

NEW YORK (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev left for home Thursday night ending a historic 25-day visit to this country which neither American nor the world will soon forget. Khrushchev smiled and waved both plump arms in the air from the ramp of his plane before stepping inside.

His farewell words at Idlewild Airport repeated his call for a change in the structure of the United Nations.

"The Soviet Union is ready to do its utmost to achieve disarmament," declared Khrushchev, reading a statement under the glare of floodlights. He stood in front of his Soviet TU-144 turbo-prop airliner.

To the last, New York police kept their security guard tight around the Soviet premier. Police were posted all along his route from the Park Avenue Soviet headquarters to the airport across the East River in Queens.

As Khrushchev walked from the headquarters building some of the police—relieved to see their charge leave—cheered and whistled.

Bucs Win Series On Maz' HR In 9th

By Jack Hand
Associated Press Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) Bill Mazeroski's ninth inning home run gave the Pittsburgh Pirates its first world championship since 1925 with a 10-9 victory over the favored New York Yankees Thursday in a heart-stopping seventh World Series game.

Mazeroski leaped into the air and waved his plastic helmet as he rounded second base, and Pirates fans surged onto the field to greet their hero.

Plate Umpire Bill Jackowski extended his arms wide to keep home plate open for the stocky second baseman from Wheeling, W. Va.

Hats skidded through the air and pennants waved gaily as men, women and children surged around the two dugouts to celebrate this triumph after 35 years of bitter frustration.

It was the third Pirate championship in five World Series and the third defeat for Manager Casey Stengel in his 10 Series and probably his last year as manager of the New York Yankees.

The Pirates had come back with a big eighth inning to go ahead 9-7 with five runs, climaxed by catcher Hal Smith's 3-run homer. Until then, the Yankees were riding high with a 7-4 edge. New York tied it 9-9 in their half of the ninth, but that merely set the stage for Mazeroski's heroics.

Bill Mazeroski

Happy faces among the crowd of 36,633 glowed when Pittsburgh knocked out Bob Turley and scored two in the first and two more in the second for an early 4-0 lead.

The Yankees routed Vern Law and continued to blast Elroy Face, the scrawny relief ace, with a three-run homer by Yogi Berra in a four-run sixth inning after Bill Skowron had hit a homer in the fifth.

Trailing by Three
Leading 5-4, the Yankees pushed over two more runs and the Pirates came up for the eighth trailing 7-4.

Then came the fantastic accident that opened the gates to the surging five-run Pirate inning. Gino Cimoli opened the attack on Bobby Shantz, who had been pitching superb relief ball, when he dropped a pinch single into right.

Bill Virdon's hard grounder took a crazy hop and hit short-stop Tony Kubek as though he had been felled by a shot. He was taken to a hospital for examination while the Buc rally caught fire.

Dick Groat's single knocked in one run and brought Jim Coates as a replacement for Shantz. A sacrifice, an outfield fly and Roberto Clemente's single on a ball hit to Bill Skowron but on which Coates appeared slow covering first, narrowed the Yank lead to 7-6.

Up came Smith, who endeared himself to Pirate fans forever by hitting Coates' 2-2 pitch over the left field wall, a drive of over 400 feet for three runs.

The Yankees started to maul Bob Friend, the third Pirate pitcher, in the top of the ninth.

Singles by Bobby Richardson and pinch hitter Dale Long ended Friend. Manager Danny Murtagh brought in Harvey Haddix to face an array of left-handers. Haddix made the dangerous Roger Maris foul out but Mickey Mantle singled to right center, scoring Richardson.

The Yanks tied the score with Gil McDougald, running for Long, scoring from third, when Rocky Nelson took Yogi Berra's smash, stepped on first for the out and then missed Mantle sliding back.

The scrappy Pirates, who had been no match for the Yankees in home runs and power in those wild scoring orgies of the second, third and sixth games, beat the New Yorkers at their own game Thursday with three big home runs. They had hit only one in the first six games. Skowron's blast in the fifth was the Yanks' ninth of the Series.

It was a game of revolving heroes. First there was Nelson, the handy man on his 10th attempt to win a regular job in the majors.

Then it was Vern Law who was rolling back the Yankees in the first four innings. Then came Berra, who has played more Series games than any other, 68, with his 11th Series home run in the big Yankee rally in the sixth.

Apparent Victory

In the frantic eighth, a golden crown was being fashioned for Smith and his three-run homer that seemed to have won the day.

But in the end it was Mazeroski with the home run that meant about the difference between $9,000 and $6,000 for each Pirate.

For goats you had Coates who threw the home run ball to Smith in the eighth, Nelson who missed the tag on Mantle while the tying run scored from third, or Terry, who fed the pitch to Mazeroski.

But the city of Pittsburgh warmly unfolded the entire crew of scrappy Pirates to its hearts for this brilliant comeback from the 12-0 rout of Wednesday and the 10-0 beatings earlier in the Series.

Nose Cone Rises 700 Miles

Mice Survive Space Ride

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—Three black mice named Sally, Amy and Moe rode a missile nose cone 700 miles into space Thursday and survived radiation, weightlessness and a blazing dive back through the earth's atmosphere. They were recovered alive and in good condition.

The Air Force reported the mice appeared to have suffered no harmful effects during the jarring 25-minute journey in an Atlas cone, making them the first known creatures returned alive from this distance in space.

Miniature Model

The tiny travelers made the radiation ride in a miniature model of a man-in-space capsule. The experiment, which took the mice into the dangerous Van Allen radiation belt at speeds up to 18,000 miles an hour, was another step toward man's eventual leap into space.

Just how well the mice came through the trip probably won't be known for several weeks, after scientists have an opportunity to study them thoroughly. Any ill effects may not show up until later generations. Plans are to mate the space rodents among themselves and with other mice. Sally and Amy are female, Moe a male.

The initial report from the recovery ship which fished the cone from the South Atlantic 5,000 miles from Cape Canaveral was that the three were "alive and in good condition."

The mice will be taken to Ascension Island and then by plane to Cape Canaveral on Monday. Newsmen here may get a quick peek at them before they are flown back to their home at the School of Aviation Medicine, Brooks Air Force Base, Tex. Their initials—SAM—stand for the school's name.

Hits Bulleye

The Convair-made Atlas thundered away from this test center at 4:35 a.m. and 25 minutes later plunked the 1½-ton cone on a bulleye north of Ascension. Within 20 minutes, the range vessel Coastal Crusader, veteran of many nose cone pickups, spotted the cone, which was buoyed in the water by a balloon-like device which popped out and inflated.

Skiddivers attached cables to the heavy package and the tough job of hauling it aboard was completed at 8:08 a.m. Then technicians began the 4½-hour task of dismantling the complex 12-foot-tall cone, finally reaching the mouse compartment and determining that its occupants were alive at 12:40 p.m.

Several other scientific experiments, most of them instruments to measure various types of radiation in the lower portion of the Van Allen band, also were tucked in the cone. These instruments will report how much radiation the mice were subjected to.

The Air Force stressed that the flight was primarily a test of the Atlas and the nose cone's ability to survive the searing 13,000-degree re-entry heat. The mice and scientific gear were carried along because there was extra room in the section of the cone which in wartime would house the nuclear payload.

Firing Squads Execute American, 12 Cubans

HAVANA (AP)—Cuban firing squads, working through the night, executed an American adventurer and 12 Cubans only hours after they were convicted of trying to topple Prime Minister Fidel Castro's government.

Despite a last-minute U.S. appeal for clemency, Anthony Zarba of Somerville, Mass., was shot early Thursday and buried in Santiago. He was the first American executed in Cuba since Castro seized power.

The 13 executions, carried out at Santiago and Santa Clara, represented the bloodiest display of revolutionary justice since the first series of war crimes trials during the early months of Castro's rule last year. They raised the unofficial total of executions to 574. Nineteen of these persons have been shot since the revolutionary tribunals were reconstituted a year ago.

Moving swiftly in the past few days, the tribunal also ground out prison sentences for almost 200 persons. Among them was another American, Richard Pecoraro of Staten Island, N.Y. The former New York City fireman was reported to have received a 20-year sentence for collaborating with insurgents in the Escambray Mountains of central Cuba.

Pecoraro said he had come to Cuba just to see what was going on and got caught in the government's roundup of counter-revolutionaries.

Zarba, 27, and seven Cuban companions were convicted Wednesday night in Santiago. Zarba told the court during the one-day trial that he landed with an invasion force of would-be guerrillas, but was only a member of the boat crew. He said he tried to leave the expedition in the Bahamas before it got here but was forced to stay on. Zarba said the boat sailed from Miami, Fla. It landed on Cuba's northeast coast last week, and 20 of the 27-man expedition were captured soon afterward.

Early Thursday morning, Zarba and his Cuban companions were taken to the army rifle range near Santiago. The reports of the first rifles cracked out through the San Juan Valley before dawn. Four different rifle squads faced the execution wall as the prisoners were executed, two by two.

Near Santa Clara, a provincial capital in central Cuba, blue-shirted civilian militiamen took over the executioner's chores Wednesday night, gunning down five convicted insurgents charged with waging guerrilla warfare in the Escambray Mountains.

Pinball Owner Denied Review

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court yesterday denied Michael Ford a review in his efforts to block seizure by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania of a number of pinball machines he owns.

A special three-judge federal court in Philadelphia had ruled Ford, of Schuylkill County, Pa., was not entitled to a federal court injunction because his rights were protected under state law.

The supreme court, in a brief order, granted a Pennsylvania request that the decision of the special federal court be affirmed. Ford, of McAdoo, Pa., leases pinball machines to storekeepers. After the Pennsylvania Supreme Court ruled multiple-coin pinball machines were illegal gambling devices, Ford converted his to single-coin devices. He sought the injunction contending state officials planned to confiscate his machines and cause his arrest in a test of the legality of converting multiple-coin machines.

U. S. Launching Is Possible

PITTSBURGH (AP)—An official of the Westinghouse Electric Corp. predicted yesterday that with the use of nuclear rockets the United States can launch a 35-ton satellite into space by 1967.

John W. Simpson, vice president of the firm's atomic power division, made the prediction in a speech before the Pittsburgh chapter of the American Society of Military Engineers.

"Such a satellite or space vehicle could be manned to provide human intelligence for military missions," he said.

"It could act as the protector of the navigational, communications, reconnaissance and intelligence satellites...it could play an active role in anti-missile warfare."

Barrett Autumn Likened To 'Active' Spoiled Child

By Pat Williams

AUTUMN in Barrett is like a spoiled child trying to attract attention. The colors are so vivid and burstingly bright, you're sure you can hear them if you listen. Well, something is making noise! Oh, the children are home from school. But these crisp days with all this fresh sunshine have you hanging out the drapes you weren't going to wash in the first place, or opening storm doors and windows that are suddenly out of season.

Then, at some signal unheard by adults, leaves by the basketful and children—by magic—gather in heaps and piles for a frolic. This results in smokey blue evenings with husbands leaning on rake handles by piles of burning leaves, to talk over the Series; and empty plates with children leaning on hands and elbows beside them, to doze.

Halloween Coming

The news finally got out that Halloween is coming. Now, there isn't a safe place to store anything that even remotely resembles a costume. Children and their "finds" disappear with a rapid motion vaguely like a chipmunk with stuffed cheeks.

Doors slam followed by giggles. The supply of pins and tape is in direct proportion to the amount of cast-off clothing or worn out household furnishings.

Local Pianist Recital At Michigan

PIANIST Helen Ininger will give a public degree recital at the University of Michigan, Sunday, Oct. 23, in Auditorium A, Angell Hall.

Miss Ininger, whose home is at 383 Broadhead Ave., East Stroudsburg, will give her recital towards the master of music degree.

Program

Her program will include: "Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue" by J. S. Bach; "Sonata in A-flat, Op. 110" by Beethoven; "Passacaglia" by Pistoia; and "Symphonic Etudes, Op. 13" by Schumann.

I can't seem to find. The reluctant efforts will either be preserved for posterity in a museum; under glass and heavy guard, of course . . . or I'm going to hold a rummage sale. There's an idea!

Another aspect of autumn in Barrett is the bulging calendar of events that leaves a two-car family one car less than they need, and a one-car family out of the running altogether, (or looking over those 1961 models). Members of the same family wave as they pass to and from classes and meetings. Short notes on the kitchen blackboard assume the proportions of letters from overseas. It does get hectic, but somehow, the family all sat down to Sunday dinner together.

Even with the preparations for special events and an occasional glance toward the approaching holidays, there is enough time for everything—even time to go out to vote.

Those who are planning to attend the card party at the Woodside are in for a pleasant evening. All the members of the art classes taught at the Barrett YMCA last year are having an impromptu art show, and the door prize is a painting by Edna P. Englehardt. It will be hard to choose which of the practice canvases to take over for the showing.

"Squaring" Off

Square-dance enthusiasts will enjoy the barn dance at the Flying W on the following night. Now where did I put that red-checked skirt? Maybe, the rumor of coming Halloween will prove to set the "mode of attire" for the evening. Either way, choose your partner.

No matter where you are with your fall housecleaning, so is everyone else. The drapes look so new against the three-year-old coat of paint and the rug is down on the freshly-waxed floor. Why not decorate a bit for Halloween? The Trick or Treat gang in your neighborhood would love some fresh pop-corn with a small paper cup of cider. Offer some to the occasional adult—why keep the fun just for children?

By the way, before you grab a paint brush to bring that wall up to date, or start popping corn, take a short walk out in the loveliest fall we've had—since last year.

Held On Hit-Run Charge

Monroe Boroughs, Townships Report Dips In Revenues

MONROE County boroughs and townships reported reduced revenues in 1958 from 1957. Borough revenues decreased $8,648—or 1.6 percent—to a total of $525,937, and township revenues decreased $34,836—or 6.4 percent—to a total of $506,405.

These statistics were announced yesterday by Genevieve Blatt, Secretary of Internal Affairs, in a publication titled "Monroe County Local Government Financial Statistics—1958." This is the forty-eighth 1958 publication in a continuing series designed to present information concerning the finances of all municipalities of the Commonwealth.

A separate publication is being issued for each county. These will appear in alphabetical order by name of county.

Boroughs received approximately one-half of their revenues from taxes collected, and townships received one-third of their revenues from taxes. State highway aid contributed an additional 42 percent of township revenues.

Expenditures

Borough expenditures were $474,238—an increase of 12.4 percent over 1957—and township expenditures were $497,652—a decrease of 10.6 percent. Revenues exceeded expenditures in both boroughs and townships.

Municipal net debt of boroughs decreased from $299,340 at the end of 1957 to $262,596 at the end of 1958, but township net debt increased during the year from $38,000 to $38,170. Total assessed valuations increased more than $750,000 during the year, and as a result of the increased valuations and decreased net debt the remaining borrowing capacity of the county's municipalities increased more than $70,000 to a total of $1,573,016 at the end of 1958.

WHY ARE NURSING HOME RATES LOWER THAN HOSPITAL RATES?

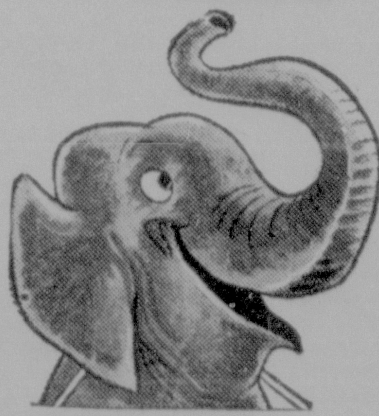

Basically, a Nursing Home provides room, board, and nursing care. But so do hospitals. Why, then, the big differential in rates? A hospital must carry the additional overhead necessitated by the needs of acute patients — X-ray, laboratory, maternity, and surgical facilities. If a guest ever becomes acute at the Golden Years Home, this guest can be transferred to one of the two nearby hospitals, because an acute patient belongs in a hospital. Similarly, a non-acute person needing nursing care should be in a Nursing Home, where this person will not be required to pay the higher rates which in part go toward facilities this person does not need.

A myth that dies hard is that American states and cities are poor, the Federal Government rich, and that unless the latter helps the former squalor will triumph. But the facts are otherwise, and are beginning to get more attention.

The state of Michigan has made headlines in past months because of its financial problems. Legislators were conscious of the total tax load Michiganders were bearing, and couldn't agree on who should bear any increase. Piteous pleas were heard for Federal aid from some quarters.

But Ross Roy, acting chairman of the Wayne County Republican Finance Committee, recently pointed out where Michigan tax money is going.

"... In 1958," he said, "we contributed 6.2 billion dollars in taxes to the Federal Government—over 15 times our '60-'61 state budget." Leaving out excise taxes on autos bought by residents of other states and paid by them, he still finds that Michigan paid nearly $4 billion—about 10 times the state budget.

If the Federal Government would cut its budget by only 2½ per cent, and thus free tax resources for Michigan to utilize fully, Mr. Roy points out, Michigan could collect $100 million more each year and wouldn't have a trace of a budget problem left.

The Chicago Tribune takes the same tack. Chicago collects only one tax dollar from its citizens while the Federal Government is collecting 12. If more tax resources were left to the city, rather than being preempted by the U.S., Chicago wouldn't have to turn to Washington for help with its internal affairs.

The story is the same throughout the nation. Defense spending takes only half of Federal tax revenues. Much of the rest is spent trying to make up for revenues states and cities can't collect because the Federal tax collectors already have milked their taxpayers dry.

The Ailing Aged

A government survey shows that 77 per cent of Americans 65 years old and over have chronic ailments and that nearly half the persons in this age group depend upon annual family incomes of less than $2,000. The figures bolster the arguments of both presidential candidates who differ only in the means of providing adequate medical care for the elderly.

Congress has adopted legislation providing federal-state medical assistance to about 2,400,000 elderly now on relief and about 10,000,000 others who may qualify as being "medically needy." Vice President Nixon favors a program based on federal financial assistance in paying health insurance premiums. Sen. Kennedy proposes to finance medical care through an additional Social Security tax.

The study, made by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, was based on a two-year survey of 73,000 households. It showed that about 42 per cent of those 65 and over have chronic illnesses that limit their activity and that an additional 18 per cent have trouble moving about. Oddly enough, it was found that elderly persons living in large centers of population were less restricted in activity as a result of chronic ailments than those residing on farms.

Now that the non-partisan survey has confirmed the need for providing medical care for our senior citizens, each of the candidates has but to convince the voters that his particular method of providing that aid would be the least expensive. —Newark News

The Allen-Scott Report

Benson Sets Records

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — Secretary Ezra Benson is making certain that he will leave office with two unique records for an Agriculture Department chief.

When he departs next Jan. 20, Benson will have done (1) more foreign traveling than any other member of the Eisenhower cabinet.

Officials of the Military Air Transport Service, which provides the planes for Benson's far-flung trips, estimate their cost at "around $500,000."

The controversial Agriculture

head is very proud of these exceptional records. He beamingly tells assistants, "When I leave office, I will have done more traveling abroad than any other member of the President's cabinet. That's quite an achievement."

This record is being nailed down by Benson with two more extensive foreign trips before he quits office—one to South America, and another to the Far East.

Benson's South American schedule includes five countries—Brazil, Uruguay, Argentina, Chile and Peru. Leaving Oct. 20, he will be gone until Nov. 3, and will be accompanied by a large group of representatives of farm publications, radio and TV.

This trip's official purpose is "marketing development and goodwill."

Schedule of the Far Eastern tour is still undecided. But certain to be included are Japan, India, Burma, Malaya, Indonesia.

la. the Philippines and Formosa.

With these two final junkets, Benson will have visited some 50 countries, flown more than 35,000 miles and been aboard about 150 days—well over one-third of a year.

Another accomplishment—interesting, he has chalked up this record in less than five years.

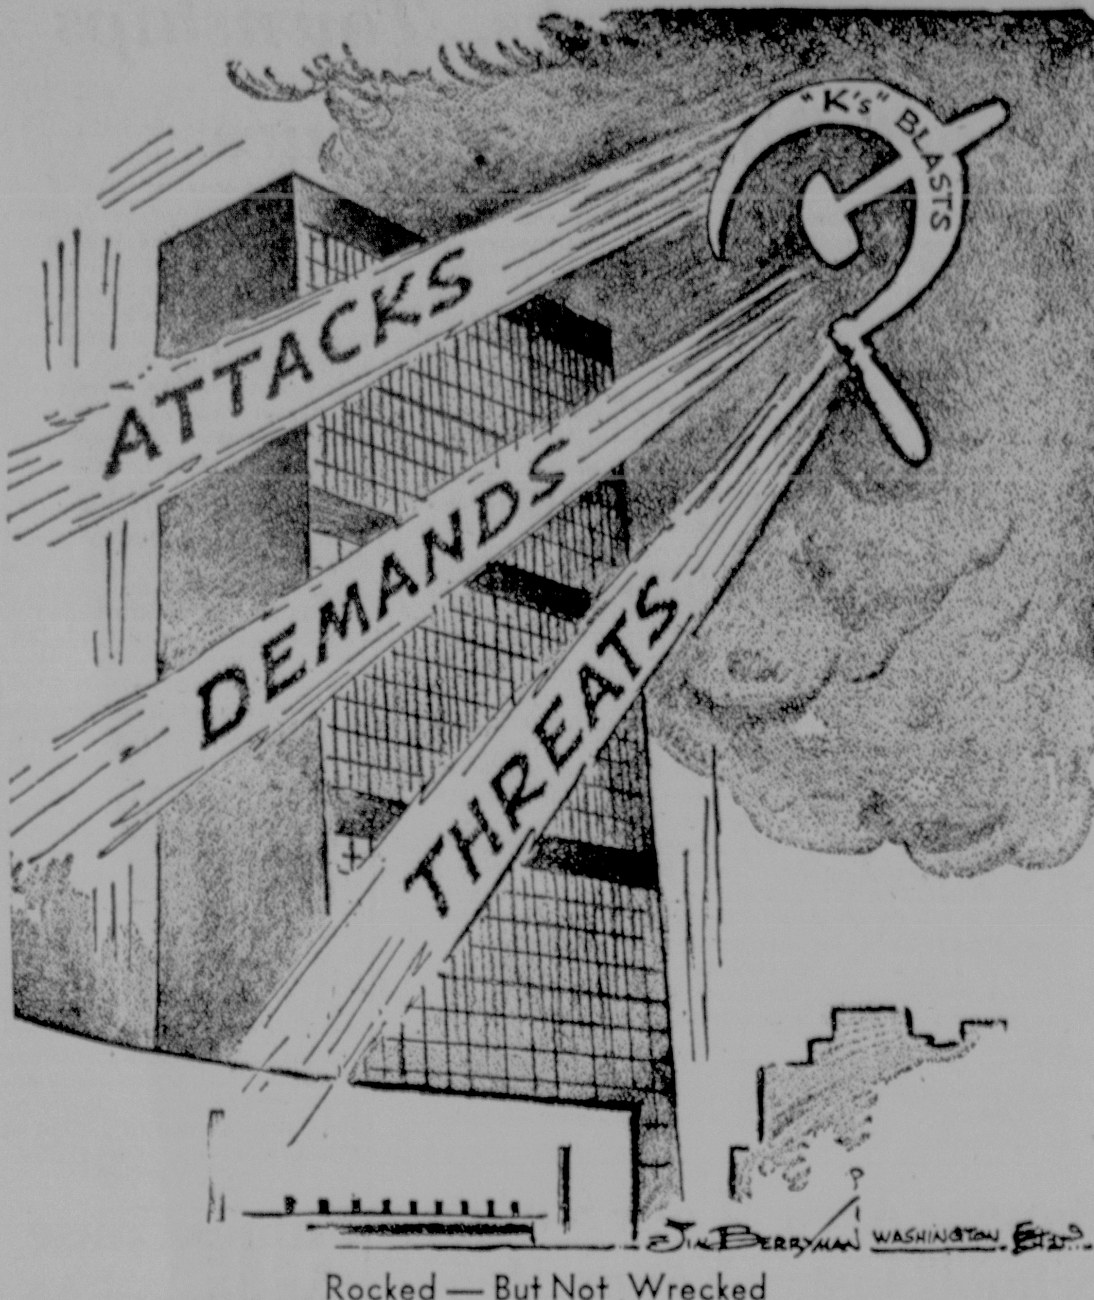

Unlike Secretary Dulles, who began traveling soon after taking over the State Department in January 1953, Benson did not start his foreign tripping until 1955, when he made a Feb. 19-March 8 tour of the balmy Caribbean. That year he also made a 17-day trip to Europe and the Middle East with stops in seven countries.

Once launched on foreign traveling at government expense, the Agriculture Secretary missed only one year—1956, when President Eisenhower ran for re-election. After that, Benson resumed touring abroad.

In 1957, he made a 23-day global trip. Accompanying him on the MATS plane were five assistants and his daughters Beverly and Bonnie. Inquiring newsmen were told Benson "would pay all his daughters' expenses except their transportation." Also that Beverly would "act as his companion at social functions, and Bonnie would be Beverly's companion."

In 1958, Benson spent 10 days in Russia. In 1959, he made an extensive European tour that included Germany, Sweden, Norway, Finland, Yugoslavia and Poland.

Foreign Flashes — Jordan and Iraq, estranged since the latter's bloody revolution in which the King was slain, will soon resume diplomatic relations. King Hussein and Premier Kassem have privately agreed on that in a series of negotiations through intermediaries. The cementing tie was their mutual dislike and distrust of UAR President Gamal Nasser. As a goodwill gesture to 14 of the newly-independent African nations, the State Department has granted them an immigration quota of 100 each. Washington realtors are hopefully anticipating a boom in business in selling these new nations official residences in the Capital. The Republic of Guinea has already obtained a $250,000 embassy in an exclusive Northwest residential section.

Rocked — But Not Wrecked

The Pennsylvania Story

Passing Parade

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — Dark glances were tossed in the direction of lawmakers on Wednesday as the 1960 Legislature in its hip - and - biop recess - and - convene mood returned to Capitol Hill for a convening session once again.

Scowls at lawmakers were brought on for two primary reasons. . . . In the first place Wednesday was one of those holidays Capitol Hill workers look forward to—Columbus Day—but alas, because the Legislature was to be in session on that day, some state payrollers had to stay on hand to make up a skeleton force in the various and sundry departments, boards and commissions.

Second reason for the legislative scowls was the fact that Wednesday was the sixth World Series game—with the game played in the home city of the Pittsburgh Pirates. . . . Several lawmakers themselves fretted over the point for they too wanted to take in the game!

And then there was Governor Lawrence himself, one of the stoutest of stout Pirate fans, who early in the week was quite nettled himself over the whole thing. Lawrence was in Williamsport for a speech Wednesday.

"Good grief, when we set this reconvening date back in mid-September, who ever thought the Pirates would be back in Pittsburgh in a World Series game on that date?" wailed one legislative leader defensively.

Wanted: One Anthropologist!—If the Department of Health has its way, Pennsylvania is going to have an anthropologist—a "cultural anthropologist," no less.

At least that's the word from the State Civil Service Commission which this week announced that an examination would be given for a "Research Cultural Anthropologist" for Pennsylvania's Health Department.

In case there are any "research cultural anthropologists" on the loose in the state, the position pays from $9,454 to $12,075. . . . What would Pennsylvania's taxpayers do with an anthropologist—in their Department of Health? . . . Well, here's what the department has to say in part in its civil service outline of the position:

"This is highly responsible professional research and planning work for the purpose of developing and improving the effectiveness of programs of the Department of Health by combining knowledge and findings of the social sciences with those of the public health." (We got lost on that bit.)

For the non-anthropologically-inclined millions who inhabit the primitive Keystone State, anthropology as defined by Webster's bargain special, runs something like this: "the study of the races . . . often restricted to the study of the institutions, myths, etc., of primitive peoples" . . . Anyone for some primitive myths?

"As I Was Saying, John"—We noted a rather curious incident during the past weekend—which caught us as we started glancing over our notes today.

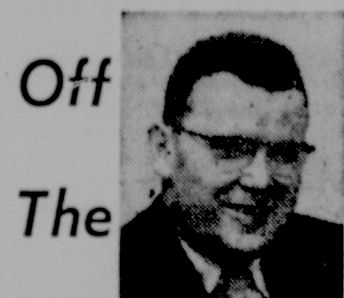

On Sat., Oct. 8, Republican State Chairman George I. Bloom, speaking here in Harrisburg, more than a score of representatives of 13 nationality groups, declared that during the current campaign Republicans planned to show television films "depicting the advances made by Communism in Europe and Asia as a result of policies adopted by the (Democratic) Truman administration."

Curiously — the day before, on Oct. 7—Democratic Governor Lawrence at a press conference in Erie was saying:

"Truman stopped the Iron Curtain and Russia at Greece and Turkey and in Korea. Here now — and if you will remember in their (Republican) 1952 platform I think they said they were going to roll back the Iron Curtain, but instead of rolling back it has been rolling this way back — up to within 90 miles of the coast of America (Cuba); here you have this crazy Castro only 90 miles off the coast of Florida."

(As I was saying, John—who said what first?)

Try and Stop Me

—by Bennett Cerf

"We were entertaining some very important people for dinner last night," an actor told Robert Q. Lewis, "and one of them accused me of being a henpeck—right in front of my wife and everybody."

"Did you get sore?" needed Lewis.

"Did I?" snarled the actor. "But by the time I finished the dishes, sweeping up, and changing the baby, I had cooled off."

"What," asked a theater owner of a prospective head usher, "would you do in case of fire?"

"You wouldn't have to worry about me," assured the prospect. "I'd be out of the joint in no time."

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Second Debate Thoughts

By George E. Sokolsky

Those who like to keep score will attempt to decide who won the second debate between Richard Nixon and John Kennedy. This is difficult to do because it was not a debate. Nearly every subject discussed was left hanging in the air. Not one subject was completed. It could not be otherwise in view of the format employed. Here is the pattern:

1. A newspaperman asked a question;
2. A candidate replied;
3. His opponent answered the candidate, during which he made certain allegations;
4. Another newspaperman asked a totally different question, cutting short the discussion in hand as though a sentence ended with a semi-colon instead of a period. For instance, when Kennedy, in polite language, said that Nixon was not telling the truth or vice versa, there should have been a full statement by both men as to the facts and circumstances.

Instead both were cut short. I shall give an example. Senator Kennedy in the course of his direct statement said:

"... I don't believe that the government contracts division has operated with vigor. Everyone who does business with the government should have the opportunity to make sure that they do not practice discrimination in their hiring and that is in all sections of the United States."

This was spoken incidentally to a rather confused question, Mr. Nixon took umbrage. He answered:

"Now, the Senator referred to the Committee on Government Contracts and yet that very committee, of which I am chairman, has been handicapped by the fact that they had not the adequate funds, we have not had adequate powers, we have not had adequate staff."

"Now, in the special session of Congress and also in the session that preceded it, the Democratic Congress, in which there is a two-to-one Democratic majority, was asked by the President to give us the funds and give us the power to do a job and they did nothing at all . . ."

In effect, Nixon's reply says that Kennedy is not telling the truth; yet by the rules of this debate, Kennedy was precluded from answering Nixon or of correcting his statement. This happened to Nixon, too. At one point, Senator Kennedy said:

"Well, Mr. Nixon stated the record inaccurately in regard to the depressed area bill. I am very familiar with it. It came out of the committee of which I was chairman, the Labor subcommittee in 1955. I was the floor manager . . ."

Senator Kennedy's entire statement on this matter was designed to establish that Vice President Nixon was not telling the truth and that he knew that he was not telling the truth. But Nixon had no opportunity to reply. The next voice after Kennedy was that of a newspaperman asking a totally different question. The matter was left hanging in the air.

This is not debating. It is a format that cannot be described. Time after time, as I listened to this discussion, I wished that one or the other of the debaters would deal with some one subject fully.

The genius of the Lincoln-Douglas debates was that they had no newspapermen to ask questions. It must be said, however, the second lot of Nixon-Kennedy questions were more sensible than the first lot which seemed to me to be extraordinarily stupid.

Senator Kennedy, for instance, makes a fuss over the fact that we are using our steel capacity only 55 per cent. What does he expect? During World War II, we expanded our steel capacity to meet the requirements of all the allied countries, including Soviet Russia.

During the post-war years, we used our steel capacity for domestic purposes and to rehabilitate not only our allies but the defeated nations. Having provided them with enormous sums for rehabilitation, they no longer need our steel but are exporting their steel, in competition with ours, at lower prices. They are exporting even to this country. Would either candidate be willing to say:

1. That the tariff be raised to keep out steel and steel products which compete with American steel and steel products;

2. That we cease to assist any country whose products compete with ours, even though that country is essential to our defense?

This is the way to argue these points, if they are to be debated at all.

Some confusion exists on the position of the Roman Catholic Church in temporal matters ever since the question of Sen. John F. Kennedy's religion was hurled into the campaign air.

The following was prepared by a group of Roman Catholic clergymen including some of the most prominent theologians and Catholic speakers. They remain anonymous only in light of the fact, as expanded herein, that the Roman Catholic Church has no position; therefore it has no spokesmen; in such temporal matters. The following explains, more simply than we have ever seen, the fallacy of turning a religion into a bigoted political bludgeon.

The Roman Catholic Church takes no precipitous, shoot-from-the-hip positions. The wheel of Rome grinds slowly. The Church takes a strong stand on matters political only when they directly affect the spiritual. For all the rest, the individual Catholic is left completely free.

No Catholic in America, private citizen or public servant, ever is told by his Church what candidate he has to vote for or what stand he has to take on any political issue. A popular case in argument posed by persons who do not know at all how the Church moves, is the question of the Spanish Civil War.

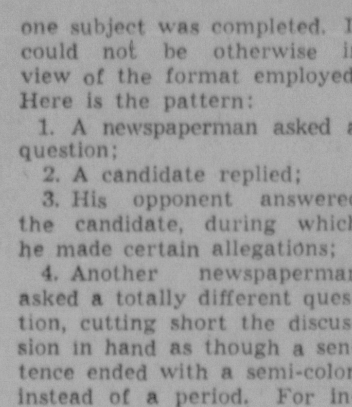

On the question of Franco, there never was a "Catholic position." Communism was involved; because of the loudly publicized Communist involvement, many American Catholics were predominantly sympathetic to Franco because he was opposed to Communism.

This was a matter of widely disparate Catholic opinion. Some American Catholics were opposed to Franco.

Catholics believe that the Church is the supreme authority over its members in spiritual, religious matters only; and that in all things temporal the State is supreme.

The Church does not interfere in the things that are Caesar's, unless Caesar tries to seize the things that are God's; then she

New Air For Old

Doubting Thomas: Say, Doc, aren't you a little big for dolls?

M. D.: This isn't a doll; it's a dummy. Today we're going to learn artificial respiration.

D. T.: Oh, I know. You bend over the back and out goes the bad air; in comes . . .

M. D.: No! That method went out years ago. I'm going to show you the best way. Now let's lay the dummy on his back.

D. T.: You should have spoked his clothes to make it look real.

M. D.: Lots of people in dry clothes need artificial respiration, too. Lightning, high tension wires, exhaust-filled garages can all stop breathing.

D. T.: Okay. So how do you do it?

M. D.: First, you clean the mouth. You have to clear out debris and thick mucus which can block the flow. It takes only a few seconds. See how I brush it with my fingers?

And you have to check the mouth frequently. Fresh mucus can clog the passage any time.

He's Ready

D. T.: So how do you give artificial respiration? My hands are ready for work.

M. D.: I hope your mouth is, too.

D. T.: What?

M. D.: Mouth!

D. T.: I thought I was hearing things. Say, watch it! You'll break his neck.

Straight Passage

M. D.: No, you have to bend his head way back to take the curve out of his throat. This leaves an almost straight air passage.

D. T.: Now you're making him look like Mussolini.

M. D.: That's right. I put my left thumb in his mouth, grip his lower jaw and pull up until his lower teeth stick out. This will keep his tongue from dropping back and blocking the passage.

Not Too Difficult

M. D.: And you don't have to break your back. You can keep this up for hours. Why even a youngster could breathe air into your large bulk.

D. T.: Say, do you think I'd be good at artificial respiration?

M. D.: It's a breeze! With your wind, you ought to be a specialist!

Social Security Guide

Q—Six months ago I fell and broke my arm. My doctor tells me that I won't be able to return to work for another two months. Since my earnings for this year will be very low, will I be able to have my social security record frozen?

A—Probably not. In order to have your social security earnings record frozen, your impairment must be of a long-continuing and indefinite duration. Since your doctor has told you that you will be able to return to work in the near future, your impairment is probably not severe enough to meet the social security requirements.

Q—I am 53 years of age. Four months ago I had to quit work because of a lung condition which the doctor says is going to become more serious as time passes. I constantly have to take medicine which makes me very dizzy so that I can't concentrate on my job. When can

I apply for my social security disability benefits?

A—Your social security office can take your disability application any time. However, disability benefits do not become payable until the end of the 6th full month of a worker's disability. You may come to the district office at Easton, Pa. since you have been disabled four months.

Q. I recently read that the new social security law provided for benefits to disabled persons at any age, if they had worked long enough under social security. What about their dependents?

A. Their dependents are also eligible. This includes wives at age 62, or at any age if they have children eligible for benefits in their care, minor children under age 18 or disabled children over age 18 whose disability began before age 18.

Bangor Senior Is Honored By School At Assembly

BANGOR — Jeanne Butz, a senior at the Bangor Area Joint High School, was honored in assembly yesterday for her outstanding performance on the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test given last spring. Arnold F. Wynne, Guidance Director, presented to her a Letter of Commendation signed by Dr. John M. Stalna-ker, president of the National Merit Scholarship Corporation and Dr. Trever R. Williams, high school principal.

Agreement On Picketing

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — An agreement was reached in Delaware County Court yesterday limiting picketing at the General Electric Company plant in Collingdale.

Some 70,000 workers, members of the International Union of Electrical Workers, have been on strike at 44 GE plants throughout the country since Oct. 2.

The company had petitioned the court here for an injunction to restrain mass picketing. After a conference in the judge's chambers the hearing was continued until Oct. 30.

A stipulation agreed to in court limited pickets to 14 by the IUE and six by a second striking union, the American Federation of Technical Engineers, also on strike.

Eastburg Man Is Honored At Retirement Ceremonies

A RETIREMENT party was held recently at the Pavilion, Phillipsburg, N. J., honoring the retirement of four agents of the Prudential Insurance Co.'s Easton district office. 135 employees and their wives attended.

The combined service of these four agents represents 125 years of service. L. J. Lowrie, with 41 years service; Frank B. Hess with 40 years; Lester E. Dech with 28 years; and Tom Long of East Stroudsburg with 18 years service.

Speaker for the occasion was James R. Chapman, executive director of Agencies, Central Atlantic Regions. Company awards were presented by Thomas H. Parker, director of Agencies, Reading, assisted by Bob Robertson, regional supervisor, Reading. The gifts from local representatives were presented by E. P. Canavan, manager, Easton. Master of ceremonies was Earl Johnson, Easton.

Lowrie joined the Prudential as an agent in Scranton in 1919 and transferred to Easton in 1922. Hess, Dech, and Long have been Easton agents during their entire careers with the company.

Long is a veteran of World War I, a member of the Elks and the Presbyterian Church and is married and has a daughter and two sons and lives at 271 Broadhead Ave., East Stroudsburg, Pa.

BANGOR — A report on the summer's Daily Vacation Bible School program was presented by the Rev. H. N. Reeves, Jr., at the luncheon meeting of the Ministerial Association of Bangor and vicinity at the Broadway Hotel.

He noted that 16 congregations participated in the various schools. There were 882 children enrolled and 286 teachers and helpers in charge.

The traditional Thanksgiving Day community service was arranged to be held at 9:30 a.m., Nov. 24, at the First Methodist Church. The Rev. Chester B. Starr, pastor of the First UEC Church, will be the speaker.

Christmas Vespers Plans also were made for Christmas night vespers Dec. 25 at the Salem EUB Church.

A farewell gift for the Rev. Paul Youse, who is leaving Grace Lutheran Church, East Bangor, to accept another call, was approved.

The Rev. Catterall, president, was in charge. Opening devotions were led by the Rev. Harold L. Ulmer. The speaker was the Rev. Joseph Brookshire, of Lexington, Ky.

Angry Mob Seek Stiffer Rhee Penalty

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—An angry student mob surged into the South Korean Assembly chamber yesterday demanding stiffer punishment for officials of the ousted Syngman Rhee regime.

Premier John Chang, already facing a political crisis within his own party, moved quickly to placate them.

The largest demonstrations here since last April's revolution that overthrew Rhee were mounted outside the Capitol and spilled into the assembly's lower house. Chang promptly rushed back to Seoul from a country trip.

The premier promised to push through an extraordinary law establishing a court to try police and officials charged with brutalities and election rigging under the Rhee administration.

Chang also told a hurriedly called news conference he will suspend all further trials of former Rhee government leaders until the court is created.

Several thousand demonstrators, aroused over what they considered a too-lenient attitude of the Seoul District Court in the first trial of Rhee officials, rioted outside in front of the assembly building shouting antigovernment slogans.

Sub Teachers Are Needed

NEWFOUNDLAND — Supervising Principal Leland Crammer, of Southern Wayne Joint School, has reported a need for substitute teachers at the school. Anyone qualified and interested may contact the school office.

Bangor Kiwanians Hear Coach

BANGOR — Robert Rute, Easton High School football coach, addressed an inter-club dinner meeting of the Bangor and Riegelsville Kiwanis at the Colonial Hotel.

Brains as well as brawn, in fact, perhaps twice as much savvy as physique, are needed for the game of football today, the Rovers' mentor observed, adding several illustrations to prove this point.

The intellectual type of football now played, he said, has forced him to change the fundamental approach, both offensively and defensively, at least four times in the last ten years.

High school jointures, he noted, also have made it necessary for schools to go far afield for opponents. To fill the schedule, teams from the New York metropolitan area, Baltimore, Md., or even Chicago, Ill., may be booked.

He pronounced the sport as a wholesome one, however, declaring that football definitely had an important part in any high school program.

Harry Iobst, of Easton, introduced the speaker. The Rev. Bert Tayley offered the opening prayer. The Riegelsville delegation of 30 members was headed by their president, Ray Black, who shared conduct of the meeting with Clair H. Pelly, local president.

Paul Wagner, of Bangor, and Orion Reeves, of Easton, the latter lieutenant governor of the district, were guests. Reeves inducted the Rev. Tayley as a member of the Bangor group and presented him with a Kiwanis pin.

It was announced that a Western Electric film, "The DEW Line of Defense," will be shown at next week's local gathering.

Pennsylvania Drawing Businesses

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — State and local efforts to bring in new businesses shows Pennsylvania is once again leading the way toward a creative, growing economy, Gov. David L. Lawrence said yesterday.

Lawrence made the remarks at the dedication of a $4 million plan which is expected to furnish employment for some 200 area persons.

"If there is one thing we have learned, here in Pennsylvania, it is the simple rule that a community of people can do any job it sets for itself—if it has the right spirit, the determination and the willingness to work hard together," the governor said.

None Isolated

He said the new plant makes "it completely fair to say that no area of this state is isolated in the drive to make our genuinely distressed areas healthy again."

Lawrence said that if other industries are to be attracted to northern areas of the state more consideration must be given to good transportation facilities.

"It is for this reason that the state government has given high priority to construction of the Keystone Shortway," he said. "We are moving ahead with planning and design of this highway as rapidly as our manpower and financial resources will allow."

L.H. Van Why Funeral Held

Interment was in the Sand Hill Cemetery, Bushkill.

Pallbearers were Wilford Van Why, Jack Batchler, Peter Van Why, Cyrenus Batchler, Roy Van Why and Frederick Batchler Jr.

Judge W. C. Sheely fixed Saturday for sentencing of Ronald L. Gaylor of Lafayette.

It's Their Problem

Dear Abby: We gave our daughter consent to be married and now we are sorry. Her husband is nothing but a kid himself and they are not getting along. She is home with us now and wants to divorce him, but his parents are trying to talk her into going back to him. We don't know what to do. We found out after she married this boy that he had been in a mental hospital. His parents never mention this to us before he married our daughter. I think they were trying to get rid of him. There are no children involved. Should we try to convince her to go back to him and stay married, or not. She is 16 and he is 19.

TROUBLED PARENTS

Dear Parents: You gave your consent to this marriage, now it's up to the married couple. They should talk to their clergyman or a marriage counselor. If he feels the marriage is hopeless, perhaps an annulment is in order.

Strausser In Exercise

ARMY Specialist Four Floyd G. Strausser Jr., whose wife, Nancy, lives in Tannersville, recently participated with other personnel from the 1st Cavalry Division in Exercise Trooper Turnout II, a three-day field problem in Korea.

The exercise, involving about 20,000 troops, stressed the division's ability to adapt to fast changing combat conditions. Training in defensive tactics was provided by an attack by a simulated aggressor force throughout a 220-square mile combat zone.

Specialist Strausser, a teletype operator in Company A of the division's 13th Signal Battalion, entered the Army in October 1958 and completed basic combat training at Fort Dix, N. J.

The 20-year-old soldier is a graduate of Pocono Township High School. His parents live on Route 3, Stroudsburg.

Open House Set For Fire Unit

STROUDSBURG Fire Department will hold "Open House" today at 7 p.m. said Fire Chief Robert Phillips last night.

Children and parents will be given a ride on one of the fire trucks from 7 to 8 p.m. All children must be accompanied by their parents.

All the parents should stay out of it.

Dear Abby: I have over $3,000 in Confederate money. I understand it's worth something. Where do I find out how much?

FROM GEORGIA

Dear From Georgia: Write to Office of the Director, Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Treasury Department, Washington 25, D.C.—but in the meantime don't try to buy anything with it.

Dear Abby: I am a milkman's wife with three major complaints. I hope you print this because other milkmen's wives have told me they feel the same way.

(1) Women who ask the milkman to put the milk right in the refrigerators. This is time consuming. Don't they know all dairies have milk boxes for the asking that would keep the milk ice cold until removed?

(2) Women who walk around their kitchens dressed as if they thought a mechanical man delivered the milk.

(3) Women who run up bills and act insulted if asked to pay.

Cadillac

The unmistakable stamp of Greatness!

In commerce, as in art, it is rare indeed that a creation emerges so inspired in concept and so flawless in execution that it is destined, at the outset, for certain greatness.

And yet, it seems not too soon to say that the Cadillac car of 1961 will take its place among the most memorable achievements of the automotive craft.

Its clean, classic form introduces a new look for the world's motor cars to emulate. There's a new proportion of glass to steel

. . . a new "oneness" of contour and shape . . . a new relationship of interior to silhouette.

Inside, the story is equally remarkable. Here is new roominess in every dimension. Head room, seat height, and entrance room, for example, have been notably increased with impressive results in greater comfort and luxury for driver and passengers.

And as its beauty is . . . so its performance does—incredibly nimble and quick . . . smooth and floating . . . quiet and obedient.

Cadillac's new engine is the very essence of controlled power . . . steering is feather light and sure . . . and Cadillac's new ride seems to make the roadway literally vanish beneath the wheels.

This is one car you must see and drive for yourself. The facts are simply too numerous and too exciting to accept second hand.

It's the 1961 Cadillac—and we know that you'll agree that true greatness is written all over it.

Just Between Us —

The miracle is that more people didn't have heart attacks yesterday afternoon. The final game of the World Series was a heart stopper. It was also a work stopper, play stopper, school stopper, and traffic piler-upper.

It might seem that the World Series doesn't deserve a place on the social page but yesterday's game was the most social thing that happened all afternoon. The skittler's were late finishing their bowling because the team kept watching and had to be called back from clustering around the radio.

Card players started trumping each other's aces in the excitement. Painters stopped painting and came inside to listen. During that fateful ninth inning I was driving down Main Street and sat through two traffic changes without noticing that the car ahead hadn't moved either. And nobody behind blew.

Came the top of the ninth and customers and reporters alike clustered around the radio to groan or cheer as the Yankees tied it all up. Then just when the Yankee pitcher had the Pittsburgh batter with strikes and one ball; my phone rang!

I answered it but when the yell went up from the business office and the radio roared like static—I found myself yelling in the phone, too, much to the bewilderment of my caller, who didn't even know there was a World Series on, poor soul.

Well, that's that. Khrushchev could have gone home, Castro could have shaved and the political candidates could have agreed to toss for the election and for those few minutes, nobody would even have paid any attention.

Keyhole Reporting Of Spring Fashions Can Put Record Readers A Year Ahead

Before most of Monroe County has put away their Summer cottons, the big name designers of the New York Couture Group are being previewed by store buyers for their 1961 resort and Spring collections. These collections will be covered first hand in detailed stories with pictures early in January during the semi-annual Press Week.

However, in keeping with the Daily Record's policy of keeping its readers not only up-to-the-minute but way ahead of the fashion game, capsule advance reports on the collections as they are presented to the buyers, issued by the New York Couture Group, will be released.

Readers may find in the series immediate answers to some very practical problems.

Should you, for instance, in shortening dresses cut off the extra material properly or sort of double it under, fearful of a sudden fall of the hemline?

Will you be able to wear those full-skirted dresses in style, or should you give them to the next rummage sale?

What style features should you look for in dark winter

cottons that will still look new next summer?

Junior Sophisticates
Anne Klein, young designer for Junior Sophisticates has made the waistline a matter of choice, from normal to thigh-deep, to none at all. She features several loose straight dresses in characteristic big checks or candy-colored giant plaid wools with decide-for-yourself sash ties set in the seams to be looped loosely across back or front.

She also has many over-blouses, some long, lean and buttoned down the front, others short and swinging wide above the waist.

Black crepe turned into a sprightly series of afternoon and cocktail dresses are sparingly shaped but rippling in motion through the use of bias hem ruffles, all-over pleating and smock yokes.

Jane Derby
Jane Derby has brought modern art into focus both through her abstract shaping look of her small-motif fabric textures and print designs.

"Very different" is her barrel silhouette which rounds out below a smooth hipline, and a new Pendant skirt silhouette both bulbous and soft. Her waistline is always at the waist. Her school girl outline of the unbelted pinafore flaring at the hem is indented at the waist.

Her evening dresses in colored silk linen with bathing suit tops have little cashmere sweaters to match.

Certain of fashion headlines are her party pants which look like short strapless evening dresses, straight as a streak to the thigh and then bursting out in a flounce which turns out to be culottes.

Hannah Troy

Hannah Troy has distilled youth and clear color into her collections with hip yokes and wide crushed cummerbunds elongating the torso without widening the waist area. Her jackets are short and rounded at the top. Full skirts usually arch out from a circular hip bandeau.

Round-the-world jacket costumes are shown in individualistic abstract or wide-spaced flower printed silk. In the same series are several three piece costumes in light spongy cotton tweed with tops of polka dotted silk surah.

She shows a closing group of embroidered organdy dresses: pale honey traced with ribbon-zine roses, white with red and black rose berries and white embroidered in lily of the valley.

Kittatinny Hotel Fire Happened Oct. 30, 1931

BY JIM SHAFER
Fourth In Series
THIRTEEN days short of 16 years after the Water Gap House fire, another Monroe County landmark also burned to the ground. The place was the Kittatinny Hotel, near the village of Delaware Water Gap and the date was Oct. 30, 1931. Ironically the owner of this summer hotel was J. Purdy Cope, the owner and operator of the Water Gap House.

While many theories have been advanced by spectators who saw the fire, fire marshals and others maintain the origin of the fire is still hidden in mystery. Estimates of the loss were equally indefinite, but the loss was believed to be between a half and three-quarter million dollars. Lost in the building were antiques, relics, furnishings and other articles of local historical value.

Discovered Fire
The fire was discovered by a man passing the hotel at approximately 4 a.m. He later was identified as W. A. Rogers of Cliffside, N.J.

Rogers aroused Mr. and Mrs. Cope, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Wigg, Mrs. Wigg's mother and several servants. The Copes and others had been occupying a small annex since the closing of the hotel for the season.

When awakened the people could see nothing wrong as the flames were still quite small and in the opposite end of the building and the countryside was enveloped in a heavy fog. Hurrying into their clothes, the party began to remove whatever they could carry and awaited the Water Gap firemen who arrived shortly after the discovery of the fire.

In a very brief time the flames ate through the upper floor and through the roof. From there it began to sweep into the lower floors of the building and in a matter of a few minutes the entire building was one big mass of fire and flames.

Firemen from Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg and Portland arrived at different intervals, doing everything within their power to help Water Gap firemen save the building. When hope of saving the main building was given up, firemen tried to save the annex, but their fight was a hopeless one.

Within two hours of the discovery of the fire, there was nothing left of the once large and beautiful hotel, save its garage, one small cottage that was used as servant's quarters, and a vast, flat blackened pile of ruins.

The Kittatinny was the first and perhaps the most famous of all resort houses in Monroe County, having been visited by famous men and women, motion picture stars, and state and national officials.

It had been built on the site of Dutot's Inn, perhaps the most ancient of all inns in Monroe County. It was the center of all activity in Delaware Water Gap, then known as Dutotburg, and is said by many that it was the first resort house in the locality.

The Kittatinny was erected in sections, the first part more than 100 years ago, and additions and improvements continued until it reached a capacity for more than 400 guests.

The original structure was erected by Antoine Dutot in 1829.

Attack Quemoy Issue By Demos

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hugh Scott (R-Pa.), said yesterday that a proposal to abandon Quemoy and Matsu would "whet the appetites of the Reds all over the world."

"Sen. (John F.) Kennedy is proposing that we give Quemoy and Matsu to the Communists because those islands off the coast of Red China supposedly are not worth defending," Scott said in a statement.

"The point is that those islands have been held successfully for many years. Why voluntarily offer a piece of the free world to the Reds now?"

Scott's statement referred to remarks made by Kennedy, Democratic presidential nominee, on his televised debate with Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Republican nominee, last Friday.

Horn Charges Rep. Walter With Absenteeism In House

"IF YOU WERE absent from your job 37% of the time, would you be kept on the payroll?" This question was posed by Woodrow A. Horn, Republican candidate for Congress at an open meeting in the Barrett YMCA this week. "This is the record of Francis Walter; it is also one of the worst attendance records in the Capitol."

In conclusion Horn noted that the absentee figure is not based on all legislation, but only on the important bills brought up for vote in the House between January 1960 and the recess prior to the Democratic Convention.

Horn claimed some of the items legislation missed by Walter included Military Construction Fund; Big Housing legislation; Area Redevelopment; Water Pollution and Public Works.

Republican candidate for assemblyman, Hanford L. Cleveland, gave an interesting account of the House procedure in Harrisburg as he knew it during his time of service.

Proud of Record
Cleveland stated that the speaker of the House is the one who "sets the pace," and "... it is a matter of record that we accomplished more in 5 1/2 months than has been accomplished in 2 years under the present administration. I'm also proud that I maintained a 100% attendance record during my years in the Assembly."

"My opponent has listed items marked as his personal accomplishments; one of these being the allocation for hospital funds ... this is aid given by the State to our General Hospital regardless of the person in office." Horn and Cleveland "capped" a busy day of personal visitation in Barrett Township by attending this additional meeting sponsored by the Monroe County Republican Committee.

Spell Candidates
Republican committee of Barrett Township, John R. Nauman, introduced Republican state's candidates, Robert F. Kent, State Treasurer; Charles C. Smith, Auditor General and Blair F. Gunther, Judge of Superior Court. These men could not attend, but they were each represented in turn, by George W. Webb, Jr., John R. Wilson and George Sopko who read biographies of each man as though the candidates were present.

Vice chairlady of Monroe County, Mrs. Mary Fontanella, relayed a message of greeting from the Monroe County chairman, Parkes W. Unangst and announced that the West End Republican Club would have as its speaker Saturday, October 15 former Attorney-General Warburton.

An informal get-acquainted hour concluded the evening with coffee and cake arranged for by Mrs. Laura Nauman, Barrett telephone captain and Mrs. Lydia Christianson, Barrett committeewoman and their hospitality committee.

Bushkill Fire Unit Get Reports

THE BUSHKILL Volunteer Fire Company met recently at the fire house.

Richard DePue presided over the business meeting attended by 20 members.

Fire Chief Lawrence DePue reported three alarms answered by the company in the past month, a private residence, a house trailer and a truck.

The trustees announced the arrival of the new hose, reel and fittings for the new fire truck, and also repairs that were made to the pump.

Amendments to the By-Laws of the Fire Company Auxiliary were approved.

Ten fire-police will be appointed by the president at a later date.

A donation of $240 dollars was received from the Auxiliary to pay for the telephone alarm system of the fire company.

Painting of the fire house was approved by the membership.

Andrew Lewis was appointed to head the men's committee that will assist the Auxiliary at the food concessions at the Hill Climb Oct. 22 and 23.

Asher Whittaker was hired to paint the new reel for the fire truck.

Larry Van Why was appointed communications officer with Thomas Rohner as assistant.

Mazeroski Hit Fast Ball

Champagne Drinking Bucs
Feel It Was A Typical Win

By JOE BRADIS
Associated Press Sports Writer
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Champagne bottles popped a merry tune in the Pittsburgh Pirates' dressing room Thursday after they came from behind 10-9 victory over the New York Yankees
in the final game of the World Series.

"I hit a fast ball," chortled the Bucs second sacker. "It was the second pitch and I knew it was going all the way as soon as it left my bat."

Traffic Jam
It took newsmen almost 15 minutes to get into the jubilant Pirates' dressing room.

John Galbreath, the Pirates' owner, was the first to work his way through the vast throng of writers to congratulate his team.
"They did a helluva job," he said.

Turning to Harvey Haddix, the left-hander who picked up the victory in relief, Galbreath said:
"This boy and I grew up in the same county — Madison County, Ohio. He was great, simply great."

Rocky Nelson, the balding first sacker, said he hit a high and away fast ball for a homer in the first inning off Bob Turley to put the Pirates ahead 2-0.

Virdon Beams
Billy Virdon, the fleet-footed center fielder who made several dazzling catches in the Series, beamed with pride as he accepted congratulations.

"It's hard to believe it's true,"
he said. "It certainly was a helluva ball game. I've never seen anything more exciting or dramatic."

Dick Groat, the Pirates' team
captain, summed it up this way:
"This to me was a typical Pirates' ball game. We came from behind all year and again today.
Yes sir, a typical, typical Pirates'
game."

Kubek To Spend Night
In Hospital

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Shortstop Tony Kubek of the New York Yankees suffered a severely bruised vocal cord in the seventh game of the World Series Thursday and will remain in a hospital overnight for observation.

Kubek was hit on the left side of the neck by a hard hopping ground ball off the bat of Pittsburgh's Bill Virdon in the eighth inning.

"He's resting comfortably and is in real good shape," said Dr.
Henry Sherman, who treated Kubek. "There was a little internal bleeding, but not much, and there is some swelling around his neck.
But there's nothing to worry about. He'll be okay."

Youngster Gets Ace
NEWFOUNDLAND — Terry
Staph, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs.

his father is "a pretty good land golf course on Saturday.

Orange
Fear
State

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Syracuse, the 1939 national football champion, and Penn State, its most troublesome rival over several years, clash Saturday in a game that likely will have an important bearing on national and sectional honors.

Even before the kickoff, this duel between two of the East's leading independent football teams has resulted in a duel of words between the two coaches, each determined to make the other guy
look good.

Verbal Experts
Charles (Rip) Engle, Penn State's silver-haired coach, and Syracuse's tough Little Floyd (Ben) Schwartzwalder both are experts at the coaches' standard verbal man-of-war of emphasizing the other team's strong points and your own weakness. They've been waging this kind of psychological warfare ever since Engle became Penn State coach in 1950, the year after Schwartzwalder arrived in Syracuse.

The victories in their personal rivalry now stand at 5-5 and their over-all records as coaches of big time college teams are almost identical. Ben has 66-34-2 for 11 seasons at Syracuse and Rip 62-28-4 for 10 years at Penn State. Another toss-up game is likely Saturday.

Sellout Crowd
Both are probably right in saying their 1960 teams aren't quite as strong as 1959 and that some injuries have been almost disastrous. There's no quarrel with Schwartzwalder's contention that the three teams Syracuse has beaten this year have been "Dedicated" in their efforts to knock off the national champions. Penn State will be in the same frame of mind.

Still they have enough talent, both holdovers and newcomers, to put on top fight performances for the expected sellout crowd of about 40,000.

Topping Silent Too
Casey Won't Reveal His Plans; Praises Yankees

By TED SMITS
Associated Press Sports Editor
PITTSBURGH (AP) — Casey
Stengel, one of the legendary figures of modern baseball, held court Thursday for possibly the last time in the Yankee dressing room and said in his gravelly voice:

"I won't say anything about the future. I'm going to decide what I'm going to do later in October.
I've got to find out a lot of things first."

"I just told this team that they fought like everything right down to the last inning. We were behind and we caught 'em. We were behind again and we caught 'em
a second time."

his fabulous record. There are strong rumors he does not see eye
to eye with his Yankee bosses.

Dan Topping, one of the Yankee owners, was asked, "What's the pitch on Stengel" as he edged into the gloomy dressing room to talk to the team and Stengel.

"I won't talk about it now," he snapped.

Stengel has won seven world championships and lost three.

When reporters were finally admitted to the dressing room, Sten-gel was sitting alone in front of his locker smoking a cigarette, his face pale and unsmiling.

Pitching Off
"Our pitching was a little off,"
he grumbled, "but this is a good team."

As might be expected, the Yankee dressing room was far from a jubilant place.

Mostly the athletes sat on benches and refused to enter into conversations.

Good Club
"It's a good club. It showed it all the way through. At least every Series I lost went to the last
game."

This could be the end of the baseball road for Stengel, despite

This was Gov. Lawrence's reaction to the Pittsburgh Pirates' World Series victory Thursday.
The governor is a former Pittsburgh mayor and an avid Pirate fan.

Lawrence was following the game by radio in a state car as he drove to a dormitory dedication at Kutztown State College.

When the winning run was scored in the ninth inning, "The governor almost jumped out of the front seat," said State Police Sgt.
Lester Jackson, who accompanied Lawrence.

Loop Leading Bangor Tests
Mounties At Giffels Field

STROUD Union High faces
probably its toughest opponent of the year, in Bangor tonight at 8, at Gordon Giffels Field and the Mounties are at anything but full strength.

Halfback Glen Bisbing,
who has scored one of the Mounties two touchdowns, will be out of action with a dislocated ankle. Fullback Jerry Shanley is still not recovered from the ankle injury he sustained two weeks ago.

And three of the Mounties, including two first-teamers, were dismissed from the club for disciplinary reasons. Gone are first unit halfback Jack Imbt and guard Don Metzger along with second team guard George Osborne.

Starting center Clevie Keller suffered two broken ribs in last week's loss to Pen Argyl and is out for the season.

Two Return
But coach Walt Bjorn will welcome back halfbacks Doug Wright and Bob Starnier.

Starnier has been ineligible for the past two games because of grades and the same trouble caused Wright to miss all of the Warrior's games.

Bangor, the only unbeaten, untied team in the area and leading the Lehigh-Northampton League, has allowed only 21 points in four games, while Stroud Union has been hit for 118 points in four winless outings.

Gregory Afraid His Club
May Be Far Overrated

EAST Stroudsburg State College coach Jack Gregory is afraid his team may be overrated by the big scores it piled up against Kutztown and Shippensburg.

The Warriors are at Mansfield tomorrow for an afternoon homecoming game and Mansfield would like nothing better than to serve the Warriors for the main course of the alumni dinner.

"Shippensburg and Kutztown both had weakness," says Gregory "and we knew it but we can't find any weakness in the Mansfield team."

Mansfield is 2-1 this year and

last week rapped Brockport 27-6.

"Our scouts told us that Mansfield started talking about East Stroudsburg as soon as it got a three touchdown lead," says
Gregory, whose club has split
four games.

Success Story
Gregory adds that the whole Mansfield homecoming is geared to beating East Stroudsburg.
"It would make their season a success if they could beat us," he says.

The Warriors leave by bus
this morning and will spend the night at Williamsport.
The team will workout this afternoon at Williamsport High School.

The game will be a strong test for the "Stingy Seven,"
the Warriors defensive line. In four games East Stroudsburg has given up 57.4 yards per game in rushing, one of the top averages in small college football.

Ship Checked
In its latest effort, led by end Ed (Roadblock) Becker and linebacker Die Wolslayer, the "Stingy Seven" held Shippensburg to a minus six yards rushing.

West Chester is the only team to gain more than 20-yards on the ground against East Stroudsburg.

Gregory will use the same line-up that brought him a 48-6 win over Shippensburg
last Saturday but he indicated that he may rotate his backs freely.

"We want to give our second unit halfback Frank Lupin and Toby Barkman as much chance to play as possible," says Gregory.

foremost horse judges in Pennsylvania, will remain
after the show to answer questions for exhibitors and spectators.

The half mile course is considered so rough, that contestants will be allowed to practice
the morning of the show.

The course, part of which is on a hill side, includes water,
